There is a large selection of wizards on the market - so if you want to delve into this topic, we refer you to our complete website builder tutorial.

Take care of your own domain name

A domain name is a unique internet address, e.g., www.MyBlog.com. Having your own domain gives you more freedom to blog and helps build a personal brand. It is also the best solution if you want your blog to have high visibility in search engines. How can I get a unique domain name?

If you use traditional CMSs, such as WordPress, Blogger or Ghost, you must additionally purchase your own domain name and hosting. You get a domain and hosting included in the package using website builders like BOWWE.
Keep your blog users safe

On most platforms, it is best to contact your hosting provider to add an SSL certificate to your blog site. If you are a BOWWE user, you can quickly generate one in the Domain Settings of any of your projects and automatically connect it to your domain.

Make sure your blog site has error-free code

A good blog site design should be based on error-free, so-called “clean” code. Thanks to this, your website will load quickly, and no errors will appear. Your readers will surely appreciate it.

Choose a ready template for your blog and modify it

Easy changes to the ready template will allow you to get a unique design on your blog. All you need to do is select a ready-made template from the BOWWE library and start editing it. Using a simple drag-and-drop technique, you can freely change every graphic element on your blog without technical skills or the help of a web developer.

Come up with a unique name for your blog

Your name or business name in your blog title will always look professional and help you build your personal brand. You can link your name or nickname to the topic area of your blog, e.g., annapaints, Tombakes. It is:

- use rhymes,
- look for interesting synonyms of popular words
- use phrases that will color the title of your blog.
Take care of SEO on your blog

Here’s how you can optimize your blog content for SEO in just a few steps:

- Perform a keyword analysis - tools like the Google Ads (keyword planner) or the Keyword Tool will help you with this.

- Include your main keyword in the title of your blog post - if you write your primary keyword at the beginning of your title, it will be significant in terms of SEO.

- Use keywords in your blog post - but do it as naturally as possible. Avoid keyword stuffing, so-called keyword stuffing that makes the text lose its authenticity.

- Use the keyword in subheadings - using a keyword in subheadings tells search engines that it is valuable and builds on the topic you highlighted in your title.

- Create an appropriate meta-description - a adequately written meta description will encourage users to visit your blog. You can read more about the rules for creating meta descriptions in our guide.

Create a content plan and stick to it!

You need to create a solid content plan and start your blog consistently. Of course, you can start in small steps, schedule one post a week or a month, and increase the number of posts over time.

However, consistency is the most important thing regardless of the number of entries at the beginning of a blog. So if you post on Friday mornings - stick to it. This will get your readers used to regular publications and expect more content over time.
